

Hiking in Majorca

The way to Sa Foradada

Foto: Khrizmo

Combine the beauty of nature with your inner vision and develop your own perspective.

Walking route:

The peninsula Sa Foradada lies on the northwestern cliff line of the Tramuntana mountains. It is located between Valldemossa and Deiá and can be reached by car via the coastal road Ma-10. Our starting point is the former estate of the Austrian Archduke Ludwig Salvator Son Marroig. From above we look on the Sa Foradada peninsula and then we walk on unpaved serpentines down to the big rock in the sea. The view on bizarre rock walls accompanies us just as ancient olive trees, donkeys, sheep or wild goats.

A small romantic bathing bay waits for us below. Also there is a traditional Majorcan restaurant, known for its famous wood-oven paella (Price: € 14 - € 18). We have a break of about two hours and go back the same way to the top.

Duration:

Walking time: about 2.5 to 3 hours.

Total: about 4.5 to 5 hours, with breaks and including restaurant.

Level of difficulty:

Easy to medium, there are curvy, unpaved trails.

Altitude difference: 250 m.

Recommended for families (baby in backpacks, children over 5 years).

Equipment:

Walking shoes or hiking boots, sun protection (hat, glasses, lotion for sun protection), rain gear, bathing clothes, water to drink and a picnic. There is a restaurant (specialty: paella).

Meeting Point:

At the parking lot of Son Marroig. To reach via the coast road Ma-10.

By car or public bus no. 210.

